

Algebra is a branch of mathematics that deals with symbols and rules for manipulating them.

It is used to represent numbers and relationships using variables and equations.

Algebra helps in solving real-world problems involving unknown values.

Topics include linear equations, polynomials, and quadratic expressions.